οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι τοῖς θεοῖς ἔθυσαν ὅτι οἱ Λακεδαιμόνιοι τὴν αὐτῶν πόλιν λαμβάνειν ἠθέλον. ὁ μὲν τῶν Ἀθηνῶν δῆμος τοὺς ἀγγέλους τοῖς πολεμίοις οὐκ ἐπέμψαν, ἀνὴρ δὲ τις (ὁ Δικαιοπολις ὀνοματί) τὴν εἰρήνην ἠθέλεν. αὐτὸς οὖν διὰ τῶν ὄρων πρὸς τὴν τῶν Λακεδαιμόνων χώραν μόνος ἦλθεν.

After Nero got rid of his mother's favourite, Pallas, she turned against him and supported his rival to the throne, Britannicus.

postquam Nero Pallantem expulit, Agrippina, mater imperatoris, iratissima erat. statim filium minari coepit. 'Britannicus,' inquit, 'cuius pater erat imperator Claudius, iam adultus est. ille, non filius meus, imperator esse debet.' Nero, his verbis territus, Britannicum interficere constituit. hoc aperte facere nolebat, quod cives Romani Britannicum maxime amabant; itaque militi imperavit ut venenum in cibum Britannici poneret. iuvenis tamen, consumpto veneno, non mortuus est.

Nero's second attempt was more successful.

Britannicus cum familia et amicis sedebat ut cenam consumeret. quod semper timebat ne aliquis se interficere conaretur, unus ex servis omnem cibum vinumque gustavit, priusquam Britannico data sunt. ubi poculum vini nimis calidi, in quod nullum venenum positum erat, ei datum est, Britannicus iussit servum aquam frigidam vino addere. in hac aqua fuit venenum, validius quam antea; quod per totum corpus tam celeriter pervasit ut vox et spiritus statim raperentur. omnes Neronem spectabant: ille tamen dixit Britannicum haec saepe pati. Agrippina sola, quae filium suum bene cognoverat, intellexit Britannicum iam mori.
